Some Excitement

Shortly after the mail had arrived last Monday the post-office was crowded as usual, when all of a sudden, something happened. Listen, and we will tell you: As party after party slowly wended their way to the wicket for their daily "duns", along comes a man to receive his share of the spoils. The curiosity of the patrons was at once aroused when the fair clerk handed him a parcel so large he could hardly carry it. In fact, he could not carry it very far, as when he turned from the window, lo, and behold, the foundation of the box broke, releasing the contents all over the floor. Imagine the smile on the faces of the bystanders when they noticed several pairs of overalls, neckties, handkerchiefs, buttons, socks, shoes, and other articles, feeling relieved that their inquisitive minds had been sat at rest for the time being. Even then, everything would have been alright had not some Sherlock in the crowd espied the big white label, bearing the words, "From T. Eaton & Co." Some predict we will see a new store here in the course of the next few weeks, and the Lord knows, the man had enough in that box to supply our town for two years, at least.

Dr. Curtis, of Bashaw, made a professional visit to Mirror Thursday.
